Wheelchair athletes compete Handicapped tracksters roll

by Angela Vengel
Special to the Daily

Wheelchair athletes from throughout California gathered at Cal Poly's main track to compete in the first Tri-County Wheelchair Track Meet on Saturday.

Three women and 10 men competed in events ranging from discus throwing to a 5,000-meter race.

"There was a need for something of this sort in this area. There weren't any local meets. We're trying to get the disabled to come out and do something," said Rory Cooper, a Cal Poly student and wheelchair athlete. Cooper organized the track and field meet.

Athletes could enter in five different divisions, depending on the extent of their paralysis. The classes were also divided into experienced and novice athletes, and men and women.

"About half of the athletes here have been training and the other half are just being introduced to this competition," said Cooper.

Athletes train through interval and distance runs, and train with weights for power and endurance.

"I was a runner before my accident and the preparation for competing is the same as before," said Cooper.

Many of the athletes who competed in the meet plan to attempt qualifications for the national wheelchair track and field meet held annually.

The competitions for wheelchair athletes are something entirely separate from the Special Olympics.

"The quality of wheelchair athletes is more compatible with other track athletes. We're not competing with them, we're compatible with them," said Cooper.

Many of the athletes used special wheelchairs designed for racing. They weigh approximately 12 pounds, and are much lighter than a hospital wheelchair.

"This is fun. I'm around other handicaps. It's good for my body. I want to do all I can before I slow down," said Tim Davis, an amputee since 1968.

News directors' resignation comes as a surprise to ASI

by Karen Riccio
Staff Writer

The resignation of Student Activities Information Director Doug Jones was announced at the University Union Board of Governors meeting last week.

Activities Planning Center Director Ken Barclay announced Jones' resignation March 31. He admitted it came as a surprise. Jones' position is dually funded by ASI and Student Affairs, and cut-backs in the ASI budget would have left Jones' position unfunded by fall quarter, said ASI vice president Kevin Moses.

Jones said, however, that he was resigning for personal reasons. His resignation was effective April 1, and he announced it two days earlier, on March 30.

When asked about this decision,

Jones said, "I don't consider this a public matter. I've been at Cal Poly seven years now and it's time to move on."

Jones said he has several job prospects, but emphasized that whatever position he takes will definitely not be local. He did not elaborate.

Jones leaving will create a problem because of the proximity to Poly Royal, Barclay said, and he has asked the ASI Personnel Committee to meet this week and work on finding a temporary replacement for Jones.

In unrelated business, Chairman David Haynes said the most important task for the board this quarter would be finalizing the operational guidelines and structure of the U.U.B.G. President Warren Baker wants to decrease the size of the board from 25 to 13, with nine voting members, seven of which will be students.

Bootleg radio station promotes 'new music'

by Nancy Stringer
Staff Writer

Since the start of the quarter, several Cal Poly students have become involved with an unlicensed radio station broadcasting from Fremont Residence Hall, the Mustang Daily has learned.

Posters seen around campus advertise radio station KROC, 96.9 FM, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

The station plays non "Top 40", New Wave-type music. According to one disc jockey who asked that his name not be used, the radio station likes to broadcast imported, long-play versions of this music similar to that in the Future Shock show heard Friday nights on campus radio station KCPR.

According to Evan Harding, host of the Future Shock program, KROC's prime reason for broadcasting was to promote the Felony concert, a concert performed at San Luis Obispo's Veterans Hall on March 31.

A club of the same name—the Benevolent Commandment of KROC—but which club members claim is not affiliated with the station, was recently formed with the purpose of sponsoring small concerts such as Felony, and off-campus parties.

Student Eugene Simor, vice president of the club, said the 20-member group is in the process of being approved by the Student Senate. He added the club has passed the Codes and Bylaws Committee of the Student Senate.

"So far it's a conditional club," said Simor. "We can act as a club now and wait for the paperwork to go through the channels."

The officer said the club had received some negative response from the Senate because "they are afraid we are going to take away from the Concert Committee and Special Events activities."

It appears from various sources that the club originated from a desire to bring more New Wave-type music to San Luis Obispo.

A natural extension of the club's interest would be to broadcast "new music and promote concerts the club has arranged."

Several club members pooled together their radio equipment and record albums, and had a low-power transmitter made. Shore agreed to use his Fremont Hall room as a base for the station.

Simor stressed that the KROC club and the KROC radio station are two separate entities, although some club members do participate with the station. He added that some disc jockeys are not club members.

One KROC disc jockey who claimed he was not a member of the club, Robert (Chip) Shore, said one of the goals of the club was to raise enough money in hopes of operating a legal radio station.

One of the station's goals is to broadcast "a certain type of music," said Shore. Of the 10 students involved with the station, none have radio experience.

The radio station currently is not licensed. According to Rick Turner, Special Programs director for KCPR, a Federal Communication Commission license is only required if the radio station is more than 10 milliwatts, signals could only be transmitted about 200 yards, although the station was pickup up as far as California Boulevard from the Fremont Hall location.

CAR does it every quarter—this time, 80 units of bowling

by Michael Weckslar
Staff Writer

Practice makes perfect, but 160 hours of bowling a week is a bit ridiculous. But that's the situation Steve Johnson faced when his CAR form came in the mail.

"What's going on here?" was his first reaction when he saw that he was enrolled in 80.1 units of bowling.

Though Johnson enjoys bowling, he had not planned on a career on the professional bowlers tour, so all that practice was unnecessary.

"Maybe I can get a bachelors in P.E.," he joked.

Though it may seem funny to others, the mistake was no joking matter for Johnson and 23 other people who had the same problem.

Johnson went to the registrar's office where Gerald Panches gave him a memo which enabled Johnson to have first priority to add any classes.

"I'm very happy the way things are going now," Johnson said.

The mistake, which caused Johnson a hectic week of scrambling for classes, seemed to originate in the Computer Center.

"A keypuncher put in the wrong number," said Donald Coats, Associate Dean of Educational Services.

"Normally two people keypunch identical data," Coats said, "but only one person did it this time because we were trying to meet our deadline."

This double-checking of data usually keeps mistakes from going into the computer, Coats said, adding that a mistake gets through only about one or two percent of the time.

The problem occurred when the Educational Ser-

Bowling for degrees?? No, this time it's for real; 24 students were enrolled in 80 units of bowling for spring quarter because of a computer error.

A variety of foods are necessary for good health

by Michelle Finn
Staff Writer

"A healthy diet depends not only on obtaining the different types and amounts of nutrients, but also on the right combination of nutrients," Leslie McKenzie, Director of Nutrition Services at French Hospital, told a group of about forty people Wednesday night.

The mostly elderly crowd had gathered in the auditorium of French Hospital to hear "Healthy Eating for Healthy Living," The sixth lecture of the ongoing educational lecture series, "To Your Health," sponsored by French Hospital.

McKenzie, conducting the first half of the lecture on nutrition and fad diets, said that "no one food contains all the nutrients we need in the right amounts and combinations. Therefore, a varied diet is needed. For instance, milk has calcium and protein, but no vitamin C."

She said that a balanced diet can be achieved by combining two sets of guidelines: the Four Food Groups and the United States Dietary Goals.

The Four Food Groups consist of milk and dairy products, meat and protein, fruits and vegetables, and grains. Milk is the leader in nutrients, and in recent years it has been discovered that women need more calcium than had been previously thought, McKenzie said.

Since humans don't synthesize or store vitamin C, it is important to obtain it every day from fruits and vegetables, she continued.

"Contrary to what some people think, carbohydrates are important," McKenzie said. "Complex carbohydrates are essential because they are high in nutrients plus fiber. The brain only feeds on glucose, which comes from the breakdown of carbohydrates."

The second set of guidelines, the U.S. Dietary Goals, consists of seven steps: eat a variety of foods, maintain your ideal weight, avoid too much fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol, eat foods with adequate starch and fiber, avoid too much sugar, avoid too much sodium, and if you drink, do so in moderation.

Carol Paragas, Clinical Dietician at French Hospital, opened the second half of the lecture with some tips and myths about buying nutritious foods.

"When looking for produce at the grocery store, smell the fruits and vegetables," she said. "A tomato should smell like a tomato. If it doesn't, it was probably grown in a hothouse."

Paragas said that the waxing of fruits and vegetables before being shipped to the stores "is not a bad thing, because the wax will hold in nutrients that can be lost during the shelf life of the produce."

Raw vegetables are not always the best for you, she said. "Cooked vegetables are also necessary because some fibers hold the nutrients in and our bodies need help in breaking the fiber down."

Paragas ended the lecture by talking about fad diets and healthy weight loss.

Fad diets work in the short run, but in the long run they don't work and can be unhealthy, she said.

"When you lose weight rapidly, you lose water and lean body tissue," she explained. "When you gain weight quickly, (90% of those who go on fad diets gain the weight back) it is in the form of fat. Not only are you replacing good stuff with bad, but a yo yo like this alters the metabolism and makes it harder to lose weight again."

"The failure of fad diets contributes to the evolution of more fad diets," she said.

Some basic questions to ask about a diet are who wrote it, what are their credibilities and credentials, and does it follow nutritional guidelines, she said.

"What good is being thin if you aren't healthy?" she asked.

Healthy weight loss depends on more than shedding pounds rapidly, Paragas said. "Permanent weight loss can be achieved if you take it slow, because you worked for it and changed a habit. It was not just going on and off a diet."

"Most fad diets don't have you explore the reason for the extra weight," she said. "You should think about why you want to eat, and what will happen when you stop using a crutch to lose weight. Then take it slow."

CAR errors result from clockwatching vices Office discovered an error in the data about the bowling class. It sent a correction to the Computer Center to be keypunched into the computer, and at the time there was only one operator on duty.

"Because of time we said 'oh well, let's just gamble,'" Coats said. "I've seen classes scheduled in restrooms and offices, but not this."

The mistake came about because there was no double-checking on the keypuncher, a problem that could happen again.

"Machines don't make the mistakes," said Coats, "it's the humans that run them."

Though a mistake can come from a number of sources, Coats said that it is his office that is ultimately responsible for all errors.

Club and station share same goal

Don Ready, chief engineer of KCPR, estimated the station to be at about 22 milliwatts.

But "FCC doesn't worry too much about bootlegging in this town," said Ready. "We're out in the middle of nowhere, it's a university town, Poly's a technical school. KROC's signal is not strong enough and not near anyone else's (signal strength)," he added.

The bootleg station has a positive attitude surrounding it.

"They are nice guys with no harm intended to anyone," said Harding. "They said they would not broadcast Friday night because they didn't want to interfere with my show. I like what they are doing, and I admire them."

Bargains wait at book sale

Outstanding bargains in old and new books await buyers at the fourth annual Library Associates Booksale, to be held Saturday, April 16, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in front of the Robert E. Kennedy Library.

Volunteers have sorted thousands of books into subject categories ranging from agriculture to zoology in anticipation of buyers at this long-awaited event.

Bargain items include new and used trade and textbooks, hard-bound and paperbacks, and children's books, all for sale at 50 cents per inch.

Specially priced items include a 23-volume set of the works of Alexander Dumas, Carl Sandburg's four-volume biography of Abraham Lincoln, a 15-volume set of Britannica Junior, and a two-volume boxed set of Jefferson Davis' 'Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government.' According to Library Associates Executive Secretary Ilene Rockman, books for the sale have been donated by members of both the Library Associates and the Cal Poly faculty, as well as other Central Coast area residents.

Notable architect will appear today

A partner in the internationally known architecture firm of Skidmore Owings & Merrill will speak at Cal Poly today on the design of high-rise buildings.

Navin Amin, chief structural engineer in the firm's San Francisco office, will lecture at 10 a.m. in Room 221 of the Dexter Building (the former library) on campus. He is to talk about various systems used for high-rise construction—as well as seismic design for multistory buildings.

Amin's address is the fourth in a five-lecture series sponsored by Cal Poly's Architectural Engineering Department. The talks are intended particularly for structural and civil engineers, architects, and students in those fields.

The final lecture on tilt-up construction will be on May 2.

Intramurals information

Welcome to spring quarter and spring weather! The Recreational Sports Office, University Union Room 104 across from El Corral Bookstore, should be your first stop on the way to recreation fun.

Activities for this quarter include: softball, basketball, floor hockey, golf, inner tube water polo, tennis, volleyball, archery, chess, earthball, horseshoes, ultimate frisbee, Poly Royal putting contest and dominoes. There will be men's and women's co-recreational softball and floor hockey, and basketball will be held Monday and Tuesday, April 4 and 5, as listed. All those who wish to have a team must attend.

SOFTBALL-Team leaders, 6 p.m. Monday, April 4-Science North Room 202 and Tuesday, April 5, Fremont Hall Lounge. Officials' meetings at 7 each night, same places.

FLOOR HOCKEY-Team Leaders, 9 p.m. Monday, April 4, in Science North Room 202. Officials' meeting follows at 9:30.

BASKETBALL-Team leaders, 8 p.m. Monday, April 4 in Science North Room 202.

The lacrosse team took a recent vacation—along with every other student—and it did more harm than good.

Poly dropped a grudge match to UCSB here Saturday, dropped in a big way, 15-5. It was against the Gauchos in February that Poly opened its season in the win column, squeaking by 7-6.

But a week or so off for spring break—as well as another few days to settle the trauma of adding and dropping classes—contributed to the weakness of the Mustang squad.

Not to mention Poly couldn't get its sticks on the ball. First-year defenseman Tim McKenna said the time off from play really showed in Poly's performance—or lack thereof. UCSB had control from the start, taking the ball in 21 of 24 face-offs (after every goal and at the start of each quarter) and scoring point after unanswered point.

Poly pulled some good news out of the weekend matchup. One is that some players spent a good afternoon despite the pressure. Notable was goalie Mark Hester's play, which kept score from getting too far out of hand by some difficult saves.

The other is that Cal Poly even got to play. The surprise spring weather baked the lower track enough for the team to play through.

Should the weather hold out, the team can finish its season at home against Santa Clara Saturday, April 16, and against Stanford Sunday, April 17.

Budget input

The Student Senate has passed a resolution urging President Baker to allow student involvement in committees which work with the university budget.

The Senate also endorsed activities planned to increase support for higher education. The Mustang Daily Editorial Board heartily approves both actions. As Student Senator Doug Wholton said at the meeting, it is vital that students begin participating in the formulating of the one thing which most affects the quality of their education—the university budget.

The increase in student fees at Cal Poly has been dramatic—spring quarter fees were nearly $200, and another hike is anticipated for fall. Students deserve some input as to how their money is spent. We encourage Baker to hear the unanimous call of the Student Senate for student participation in budgetary matters.

Calling on our legislators to recognize students is also an important part of making our concerns known. Along with Wholton, the Daily Editorial Board believes the way to make an impact on state government is to increase the number of students registered to vote. We call upon readers to register, and to vote for legislators who have proven they have the interests of students in mind. We also urge everyone to participate in the activities planned for this week in the University Union Plaza, which are intended to inform students about action they can take regarding fee increases.

With each passing day, the issue of student fee hikes becomes more distant and less important in the minds of state government officials. Let's make government reckon with students as a vital force, and prove legislators wrong who believe students cannot band together. And let's get more say over where the buck goes—and stops—here at home.

Letters

Participation urged

Dear Student Organizations:

This letter is to inform you of some activities scheduled to take place in response to the erosion of support for higher education, and especially the Governor's proposed fee hike of $230 for next year. While our student fees have been increasing, program cuts continue. Access to the CSU/UC systems will be more limited and it will be more difficult to obtain classes. As students we need to be heard!

On April 12, there will be a march and rally for students in the UC and Cal State University systems, as well as students within the Community Colleges. In order for our campus participation to be effective, and indeed for the entire effort to be successful, we need any help and support your organization can lend. Following are preliminary activities and events where you can help.

1. Information Table: Helpers are needed to distribute information, register voters and get petitions signed for April 5, 6, and 7.

2. Arts/Graphics: Volunteers are needed to design posters and flyers for the April 12th rally.

3. Local Rally: We need enthusiastic participation in planning and getting people out to a local rally to be held on April 7th or 8th. More details will be announced.

4. Car Pools: Volunteers are needed to man phones and organize transportation for the April 12th rally in Sacramento.

As the coordinator of this effort I cannot do it alone! We do have a short time line, but we can address the problem and show our legislators we care. Please call me at 546-1291 during the day, or stop by the ASI Office (UU 217A) to either volunteer your help or receive additional information. Thank you.

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE!!!

Doug Wholton, Student Senator
Committee for Support of Higher Education

'Friend' response

To "Just Friends":

Upon reading your letter I first feared that you might be serious, and then realized that you probably were because the only other option was that you were trying to be satirical. I chose to disregard this option mainly because it credited you with more understanding and insight than seemed prudent, and more intelligence than someone with your narcissistic mentality could possibly possess.

If you honestly believe that a girl, or anyone for that matter, owes you anything (including one step more either way), it might in be your best interest to visit some of your philosophical equals at Atascadero and in society's best interest that you stayed there.

Love or friendship is not, nor can ever be, forced. They are either free and inhibited responses of the heart to another or they are nothing. If you cannot accept someone as a friend simply because that is what they wish, I think your best hope is the dog. I just hope the dog is not bright enough to know the difference. If you cannot "Just be a Friend", you really cannot be much of anything.

Mark Connely

The Last Word:

M-TV diversity

Well, it's happened again. Another trend has swept the nation. And, yes, we've all been caught up and swept along with it. At least most of us have.

The trend I am speaking of is the now famous M-TV, a video rock station shown on cable television.

As addictive as Pacman, M-TV grabs hold of its viewers and doesn't let go. Unlike radio, which requires no listener involvement, M-TV takes its viewers on a visual tour of rock and roll.

Moving through a world of live concert scenes and yachts floating down the Rio Grande, one is easily swept away by this world.

M-TV has been credited with boosting record sales, and recording artists feel a video is just as important as concerts and tours in the promotion of a new album.

But in today's sophisticated and modern society of equal opportunity for all, how can the only representative of music television appeal to such a limited range of viewers?

M-TV boasts a strictly "rock and roll" programming schedule, yet isn't there a public interest in more variety-oriented music programming?

Certainly the "powers that be" behind

M-TV's scheduling are aware of the discrepancy.

If you have ever watched this program, you are probably very conscious of the lack of diversity involved. For example, how many rhythm and blues or soul bands have you seen on M-TV?

None, is the correct response. I wonder if there is really a need for the constant repetition of these rock videos to the point where one can predict the next song. Wouldn't a more diverse programming policy be just as profitable, if not more so?

Groups who don't fall into a rock and roll category have just as much right to boost their record sales by being seen and heard through the magic of television.

Obviously something is amiss. As long as M-TV is the only music video television station, I feel they should adopt a policy which includes a wider range of artists and songs.

It won't hurt their ratings, and it might even help by appealing to a larger audience.

Music television may never replace radio, but it ought to be able to compete on the same level.
